DECISION

OVERVIEW

This is an appeal pursuant to Section 112 of the Employment Standards Act (the "Act") by Lori Harrison ("Harrison") from a Determination issued by a delegate of the Director of Employment Standards (the "delegate") on August 4, 2000. The delegate found that Emotive Solutions Inc. ("Emotive") owed $81,505.97 in wages to forty-seven former employees. Harrison, along with ten other former employees, appealed the Determination on the basis that they were owed more wages than the amount calculated by the delegate.

ISSUE TO BE DECIDED

Is Harrison entitled to more wages than the amount set out in the Determination?

THE FACTS AND ANALYSIS

In the Determination, the delegate said:

Emotive Solutions Inc. is a high tech company which operates an on-line bingo game.

The employer states that they are strapped for cash at this time. They are looking for new investors and can not meet the payroll. Accordingly, the employer has laid all staff off without written notice as of July 28, 2000. The employer has provided records indicating the amounts of regular pay and annual vacation pay owing to each employee.

The delegate determined that Emotive owed a total of $81,505.97 in wages to forty-seven former employees, including Harrison. She found that Harrison was owed regular wages, compensation for length of service and vacation pay in the amount of $2372.43. Her calculations for Harrison were based on a start date of January 1, 2000 and an end date of July 14, 2000.

Harrison appealed the Determination on August 28, 2000. She said she is owed $2787.32. She further said she worked until July 17, 2000 and not July 14, 2000.

Emotive and the delegate were invited to reply to Harrison's appeal. No reply was received from Emotive. The delegate forwarded a submission to the Tribunal dated August 31, 2000. In her submission, the delegate said:

...The Delegate is supportive of the Determination being varied as per the attached calculations.

It appears that some of the employees were in receipt of NSF cheques and or worked past the last pay period for which the employer forwarded records. The employee's records all appear credible and should be accepted.

...The evidence presented by ...Harrison is new evidence that appears to be creditable (sic). Accordingly, the Delegate would support the Tribunal in varying the Determination as follows:

...

Varied amount:

July 01 - July 17, 2000 - $14.42 per hour x 8 hours per day x 11 days = $1268.96
Vacation pay $941.56
Compensation for Length of Service Pay = $576.80

For a grand total owing of $2787.32

The Delegate has discussed this with the appellant, who is in agreement with the varied amount. The Delegate has tried but has not been able to contact the employer.

The delegate's submission was forwarded to Emotive and Harrison for their reply. Neither replied to the delegate's submission.

The burden is on the appellant, Harrison, to show that the Determination should be varied or cancelled. In this case, I am satisfied that Harrison has met the burden to show the Determination should be varied.

Harrison claims she is owed more wages than the amount calculated by the delegate in the Determination. Emotive and the delegate were invited to reply to the appeal. Only the delegate replied and she made no argument that the Tribunal should refuse to consider the information provided by Harrison. Rather, the delegate accepted Harrison's information as credible and, as a result, she revised her calculations. The delegate said that Harrison agreed with her revised calculations and she was unable to contact Emotive about its position. The Tribunal forwarded the delegate's revised calculations to Harrison and Emotive for their reply. Neither made a submission to the Tribunal challenging the accuracy of the amounts. Accordingly, I can find no basis to reject the delegate's conclusion that Harrison is owed $2787.32 and the Determination should be varied to reflect that amount.

I have issued concurrent Decisions (BCEST #D454 and #D456-#D464) with respect to the other ten former employees of Emotive who have filed appeals of the Determination. As in this case, I have concluded that the delegate's new calculations should be accepted. As a result the total amount of the Determination is varied to $89, 558.03.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 115 of the Act, I order that the Determination dated August 4, 2000 be varied to show that Harrison is owed $2787.32 and further that it be varied to show the total amount owed by Emotive is $89,558.03, together with whatever additional interest that may have accrued, pursuant to Section 88 of the Act, since the date of issuance.
