DECISION

OVERVIEW

This is an appeal pursuant to Section 112 of the Employment Standards Act (the "Act") by Lisa Brown ("Brown") from a Determination issued by a delegate of the Director of Employment Standards (the "delegate") on August 4, 2000. The delegate found that Emotive Solutions Inc. ("Emotive") owed $81,505.97 in wages to forty-seven former employees. Brown, along with ten other former employees, appealed the Determination on the basis that they were owed more wages than the amount calculated by the delegate.

ISSUE TO BE DECIDED

Is Brown entitled to more wages than the amount set out in the Determination?

THE FACTS AND ANALYSIS

In the Determination, the delegate said:

Emotive Solutions Inc. is a high tech company which operates an on-line bingo game.

The employer states that they are strapped for cash at this time. They are looking for new investors and can not meet the payroll. Accordingly, the employer has laid all staff off without written notice as of July 28, 2000. The employer has provided records indicating the amounts of regular pay and annual vacation pay owing to each employee.

The delegate determined that Emotive owed a total of $81,505.97 in wages to forty-seven former employees, including Brown. She found that Brown was owed regular wages, compensation for length of service and vacation pay in the amount of $853.03. Her calculations for Brown were based on a start date of April 5, 2000 and an end date of July 14, 2000.

Brown appealed the Determination on August 28, 2000. She said her end date of work was July 28, 2000. She said she is owed wages for 110 hours of work for the period July 2, 2000 to July 28, 2000, which amounts to $1320.00, plus vacation pay. She provided a list of the specific days she worked during the period July 3, 2000 to July 28, 2000.

Emotive and the delegate were invited to reply to Brown's appeal. No reply was received from Emotive. The delegate forwarded a submission to the Tribunal dated August 31, 2000. In her submission, the delegate said:

...The Delegate is supportive of the Determination being varied as per the attached calculations.

It appears that some of the employees were in receipt of NSF cheques and or worked past the last pay period for which the employer forwarded records. The employee's records all appear credible and should be accepted.

...The evidence presented by ...Brown is new evidence that appears to be creditable (sic). Accordingly, the Delegate would support the Tribunal in varying the Determination as follows:

...

Varied amount:

July 03 - July 28, 2000 110 hours @ $12.00 per hour = $1320.00
Statutory holiday pay (July 1) paid regular wages not premium plus another day off with pay = 5.5 hrs x (.5 of $12.00) $6.00 = $33.00
Day off with pay 5.5 hours x $12.00 = $66.00
Compensation for length of service pay = 5.5 hours x 3 days = 16.50 hrs. x $12.00 = $198.00
Vacation pay $242.10

For a grand total owing of $1859.10

The Delegate has discussed this with the appellant, who is in agreement with the varied amount. The Delegate has tried but has not been able to contact the employer.

The delegate's submission was forwarded to Emotive and Brown for their reply. Neither replied to the delegate's submission.

The burden is on the appellant, Brown, to show that the Determination should be varied or cancelled. In this case, I am satisfied that Brown has met the burden to show the Determination should be varied.

Brown claims that she is owed more wages than the amount calculated by the delegate in the Determination. She provided information to support her position. Emotive and the delegate were invited to reply to the appeal. Only the delegate replied and she made no argument that the Tribunal should refuse to consider the information provided by Brown. Rather, the delegate accepted Brown's information as credible and, as a result, she revised her calculations. The delegate said that Brown agreed with her revised calculations and she was unable to contact Emotive about its position. The Tribunal forwarded the delegate's revised calculations to Brown and Emotive for their reply. Neither made a submission to the Tribunal challenging the accuracy of the amounts. Accordingly, I can find no basis to reject the delegate's conclusion that Brown is owed $1859.10 and the Determination should be varied to reflect that amount.

I have issued concurrent Decisions (BCEST #D454 to #D456 and #D458 to #D464) with respect to the other ten former employees of Emotive who have filed appeals of the Determination. As in this case, I have concluded that the delegate's new calculations should be accepted. As a result the total amount of the Determination is varied to $89, 558.03.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 115 of the Act, I order that the Determination dated August 4, 2000 be varied to show that Brown is owed $1859.10 and further that it be varied to show the total amount owed by Emotive is $89,558.03, together with whatever additional interest that may have accrued, pursuant to Section 88 of the Act, since the date of issuance.
